Proctoring Record & Review

A secure proctoring service that enables organizations to offer remote assessments under exam conditions

Overview

Proctoring Record & Review helps organizations to deliver assessments under exam conditions without bringing the people taking them together in one place. The comprehensive proctoring (or invigilation) service monitors test-takers, making it harder for them to cheat, and helps ensure the integrity of remote assessments.

Addressing the challenge

Organizations everywhere are now working from home, often for the first time.

Many will need to continue to test the skills and competencies of their people. Some for compliance requirements, others to support learning and development.

When organizations are delivering remote assessments, they must take steps to prevent cheating.

- If an assessment is compromised, the decision made as a result is invalid
- Someone who cheats at an assessment demonstrates a lack of integrity. If they cheat on a test what else might they lie about?

To deter and prevent cheating, organizations should proctor all assessments.

Proctoring or invigilating an assessment creates challenges at the best of times. The logistical feat of pulling employees into one place is time-consuming. The cost of hiring test centers and employing supervisors can be expensive. Now, it is not an option.

Many organizations working from home will have employees spread over different locations and time zones. So even pulling everyone together online at the same time is challenging.

How Proctoring Record & Review helps address that

Questionmark provides a secure record and review proctoring service that helps organizations to prevent cheating and ensure assessments are valid, reliable and defensible.

Proctoring Record & Review gives customers the flexibility to deliver assessments anywhere, anytime while maintaining exam integrity.

The automated system observes and records the exam session on video, for potential review later. The system flags potential anomalies, such as a second person on screen. When the system flags an anomaly, the customer can review it or send it to Questionmark for inspection. This makes it harder for a test-taker to cheat or to copy the exam questions to pass onto others.
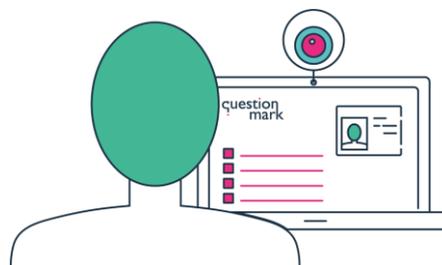

Universities, colleges and workplaces frequently use this service, which integrates with the Questionmark platform.
